WASTE PERILS U. S. SAFETY AT HAWAIIAN BASE

House Ruins Costly Navy Oil Tanks.

BULLETIN.
HONOLULU, May 6.—The "Battle of Oahu" of the United States navy in Hawaii resulted in causing recommendations to the secretaries of war and navy for curing defects in both the island defenses and the fleet. The war game umpires, Admiral Robert E. Coontz and Maj. Gen. John L. Hines recommended making "the resisting power of Oahu of the strongest possible character."

BY ARTHUR BEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
HONOLULU, May 6.—A new chapter in the navy oil scandal which rocked the national administration is being written at Pearl Harbor. At our rudimentary Hawaiian naval base three oil-tanks or more great oil tanks erected by Edward L. Doherty under the contract he obtained from Secretary Denby and Fall.

About the time he presented Fall with $100,000 in a suitcase, Doherty got for a long the navy's crude oil, reserved for future needs, and the government got in exchange fifty tanks and the refined oil necessary to fill them. In these fifty tanks, thirty-three are now empty, their aggregate capacity being 1,500,000 barrels.

Carried Out Part of Contract.
The oil scandal broke before the completion of the Doherty project. Mr. Doherty, however, ordered the completion of all the tanks planned and he carried out that part of his contract regardless of the outcome of his litigation. He told his men to build the seventeen tanks with oil because by that time the federal receiver had taken possession of the navy oil involved in the contract.

Admiral Macdonald requested the navy department to fill the seventeen tanks or to authorize the diversion of enough of these containers to prevent the corrosion of the interior surfaces. The navy department refused because the oil was in the hands of the receiver. Tests showed that the corrosion already had extended to a depth of three-eighths of an inch in the steel bottoms of the empty tanks.

Property Going to Ruin.
It is not known whether the secretary of the navy presented the question of the rusting tanks to the court. It is regarded here as extraordinary if he fails to do so and still more extraordinary that the court, if apprised of the circumstances, declined to authorize the navy to spend $100,000 for the replacement of these tanks.

In addition to these great oil reservoirs for warships fuel are also gas tanks, one built by Doherty, with a capacity of 2,500,000 gallons, and sufficient for 100 airplanes for six months. These tanks are also empty. The airplanes based on Ford Island in the harbor have already been out of service as a result of the development of the military aviation. Bombers carry 1,000 pound bombs could not take them the limited space available in the hangars and the risk of collision between warships and the gas tanks.

Marine Base Incomplete.
Admiral Macdonald's report submitted to the secretary of the defense shows that the navy is in a position to build a submarine base in the middle of the island, where they offer the enemy a good guide for the destruction of the island dry dock by shell fire.

Union Station Will Be Open to Public May 16
Chicago's new Union station will be open to the public Saturday, May 16, when the official opening will be held. The place built at a cost of $10,000,000, will be the largest and most modern in the world.

MYTHS OF SEX GLAND TARGET OF SCIENTISTS

Rejuvenation Called Vainest of Hopes.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—[Special.]—The theory that rejuvenation might be accomplished through transplantation of the sex glands and a number of other theories regarding the various ductless glands in the human structure were demolished today by a number of scientists who participated in a symposium on this field of research before the thirteenth triennial session of the Congress of Physicians and Surgeons.

Chief among those who read papers or participated in the discussion were Dr. John J. Abel of Johns Hopkins; Dr. Charles G. Stockard of Cornell Medical School, New York; Dr. Walter B. Cannon of the Harvard Medical School; Dr. Lawley F. Barker of Baltimore; and Dr. William J. Mayo, president of the congress.

Most Accounts Misleading.
Dr. Mayo denounced the fact that the public had had to depend so largely for its information about glands on the newspapers and that the accounts in these had too often been misleading. He also referred to Dr. Varian, the French physician who had been accused for his money gland experiments of being the cause of the public's misunderstanding.

Dr. Stockard, who gave the counts of some remarkable experiments in sex physiology, declared that the separation of the life-giving germ from the human system did not mean the rapid advance of old age.

"It has been stated that old age comes with the disappearance of the gonads [reproductive cells], but this is not true," Dr. Stockard said. "A person might live for fifty years after the disappearance of these cells and be just as physically hale and hearty as before."

They do not prolong youth. Their disappearance with advancing age is just a sign, as is gray hair. You might just as well expect to prolong youth by grafting black hair as by the reinduction of these gonads."

Dr. Stockard declared the great publicity given the transplantation of sex glands had led readers to believe it was some new discovery, whereas the first record of such an operation is accredited to John Hunter in 1672.

Dr. Barker said the public should be warned against the great number of glandular extracts on the market and the extravagant claims that are being made for them. He said most of them are harmless, provided they do not contain too much thyroid extract, but that they cannot do the things claimed for them. He did urge, however, that some synthetic substitutes be found for the natural supply will not be equal to the demand as the study in glands progresses. He pointed out that only one pound of dry pineal extract may be obtained from 5,000 glands.

CAREFUL! CAREFUL!

PLAYING THEIR GAME AGAIN

Mrs. Max Oser to Teach Baby 3 Languages

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

REHNE, May 6.—The Tribune has found Mathilde McCornick Oser. After a three years' disappearance, in which she was as much lost as if the world had swallowed her up, when even her parents denied knowledge of her exact address, saying they reached her through a certain bank and her husband's relatives. Mrs. Oser has located the heiress to the Rockefeller millions.

Mathilde and her husband are living happily in a modest villa on the shore of one of Switzerland's most beautiful lakes with their baby Anita, named after Mathilde's Chicago aunt. Mrs. Emmone Blaise, Little Anita is now a year old and is beginning to walk and to talk.

The couple took up residence in their new home, which they decided to make their permanent domicile only a few days ago after passing the winter in various Swiss mountain resorts, and in Austria and Italy.

Baby to Learn Three Languages.
Besides a servant—a cook, maid, a chauffeur, a gardener, and a valet—they have an English nurse in a smart blue uniform who cares for the baby girl. Anita will learn to speak French, German, and English simultaneously.

The couple are wrapped up to their heads in riding horses and motorcars. And they are concerned with fixing up their new home, making gardens and flower beds. They have a boat for lake trips and they enjoy fishing.

The Oser family was lurching when Mrs. Oser's representative called. I was shown into a big living room at the foot of a handsome staircase. Through the doorway to the dining room, I could see Mathilde, Max, and the nurse at the table. An instant later Max entered the room.

Mathilde Green Teller.
When I handed him my card, he said: "Good heaven, I thought we had escaped the newspapers forever; now you come to disturb us again."

Then without another word he went to the doorway and called in Mathilde. Oser is still a smart looking cavalry officer, straight backed and with a little toothy grin. He is dressed in a dark suit and a white shirt with a dark tie.

Mathilde had her hair bobbed, not changed, and she was taller and more slender than before her marriage. She is distinguished by her black hair and a small nose.

Thyroid Therapy Prescribed.
It was generally admitted during the discussion that little of practical value has resulted so far to the medical and surgical world in glandular study except in the field of the thyroid.

was still in the morning she has worn since the death of her ward, William McClintock, Dec. 4. Her appearance displayed the strain she has been under since the 21 year old millionaire orphan's body was taken from its grave.

She eyed the judge in a manner half-fearful, half-confident. Her attorneys had resumed her case.

"This is a serious matter," Mr. O'Brien began his address to the court, "as serious as the state's attorney has handled in his five years of fair dealing here."

Crowe Checks Gratory. "Let's proceed to the matter at issue," suggested State's Attorney Crowe.

"This woman is charged with being an accessory to two murders," Mr. O'Brien then stated. "One in Texas and one in Chicago. If proven was given Mrs. McClintock in Texas, there would be no jurisdiction in Illinois. I ask her release on her own recognizance on that charge."

"The state's attorney is in possession of all the material facts in the other case. He has presented them to the grand jury and the grand jury voted an indictment against Shepherd. Judge Olson was there with an active interest in the case. There was no indictment of Mrs. Shepherd and now that the grand jury has completed its work the coroner's jury comes along and seeks to hold a post-mortem on the grand jury's actions."

"In that case I also ask your honor to permit her to sign her own bond."

Statement by Prosecutor. State's Attorney Crowe then addressed the court:

"No evidence has been presented to me as state's attorney of this county on which to oppose bail in these two cases. I am perfectly willing to have bail fixed in a reasonable amount."

Attorney O'Brien then informed the court he was not prepared to submit a real estate bond, and said if the proceedings were a hearing on a petition of habeas corpus the court would be forced to discharge Mrs. Shepherd.

Judge Hopkins asked when he would be ready with surety, and O'Brien suggested Friday, which was acceptable. Judge Hopkins then ordered that the mittim be ineffective until that time. He said one bond of $5,000 would be sufficient, that she could sign the other herself.

A sigh was heard, and following it Mrs. Shepherd nodded her gratitude to the judge and asked if she must return Friday. She was told her presence would be required.

Their Meeting Alone. Next came the fifteen minutes alone with her husband, who has been in jail since March 18. They talked of their troubles—what little was heard as they met and as they parted and as they posed for the cameras—and each urged the other to remain

"Darl" Is My Strength and Hope, Accused Wife of Shepherd Avows

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK. Precisely the same thing that caused a coroner's jury to hold her as accessory to the murder of Billy McClintock is the thing, Mrs. Julia Shepherd maintains, that stood her yesterday to "undergo the ordeal" in Chief Justice Hopkins' court when she surrendered and obtained a stay of the warrant for her arrest until tomorrow, when she fulfills $5,000 bail.

And that one thing is her marriage to William Darling Shepherd, who goes on trial May 18 for the murder of young McClintock.

"If I weren't the wife of Darl," and the tall, forceful figure in black is dramatic in voice and gesture, "they wouldn't have dragged me down here on this grotesque, but tragic charge. They're hitting at him through me."

Strength from Darl. "But then," and the figure in black sways, then straightens: "If Darl weren't my husband I never could stand this disgrace, this humiliation, the persecution of it all. It would kill me. But with him to think of, the whole grim travesty becomes just another terrible blot of blackness packed down on me before the dawn that I know must come."

Legally, the whole episode is the best thing that could happen for the complete vindication of herself, and of her husband. That is what Attorney William Scott Stewart and W. W. O'Brien, counsel for the Shepherds, have been telling her over and over again, as she sits and waits for a chance to have a talk with "Darl," who is being sent up from his cell in the county jail.

And, legally, Billy's foster mother agrees with those attorneys.

Hard to Be Hard. "But it's hard for a woman to be legal minded when she is being crucified," the lady in mourning declares. And she begins to cry as she explains. "Actually it's the most heathenish persecution I ever could dream of. Why, Judge Olson never saw my boy, never. Yet he stalks into inquests, sticks his thumbs in his vest, and makes grand speeches about him. I didn't make grand speeches when I nursed him through illness, when I cared for him and watched him and loved him. I didn't have to get a crowd of people in a jury room to have a mother's day for my boy.

"Oh, Judge Olson never saw me, never, until the day he met me at the hearing and began calling me names. As to names, it's mighty easy, Mrs. Shepherd almost shouts it out, this business of calling a woman's name matched from history or drama or poetry.

"But it's worse than calling them behind my back. It's calling me them with me in the dark. For this terrible crime of which they accuse me, this horrible murder, it is no difficulty for us to fight it out to a real victory, the kind we deserve."

And she nods a vigorous acquiescence to the statement of Attorney Stewart when he says: "If it were a clear case of murder, then there'd be a chance of discovering the real murderer. That would be a complete vindication of the injured and accused ones."

"Or, if it were a chance whether it were murder or suicide, then there'd be a possibility of discovering evidence to show that it was suicide. That would be a 100 per cent clearing."

But here, with everything so speculative, so vague, we can and will prove the Shepherds not guilty, in a definite negative way. But how can we prove them innocent in the smashing positive way.

Halls at Judge Olson. Here Mrs. Shepherd sits forward, vibrant, determined. "Yes, there is a positive victory for us," and her eyes flash, "that is by showing what a plot Judge Olson and those back of him have hatched against us. And there must be somebody, many people perhaps, back of him. One man couldn't do this alone. We'll show his campaign of persecution."

"For some time I believe the public has been considering this idea of persecution. With me held to the grand jury, on a speech from Judge Olson full of none too pretty adjectives and a reference to 'Lady Macbeth,' the pendulum has swung. And it's swung straight over to our side. Everybody who knows anything about law and life will know that it's out and out persecution."

More fervid sentences about "my firm and that God would care for them."

That was their answer to the seventy-five witnesses who had given testimony upon which the coroner's jury reached the opinion Shepherd killed both Mrs. McClintock and her son in a sixteen year conspiracy to obtain the McClintock fortune of $1,000,000.

COOLIDGE FILM USED AS STOCK BAIT; QUIZ OPENS

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(Special.)—At the request of President Coolidge, the department of justice today began an investigation into charges that a talking motion picture of the President was being used as a lure in selling stock by the Phonofilm Sales corporation of New York City.

According to information reaching the President, James W. Elliott, a New York stock promoter, who had once been investigated in connection with stock selling transactions, was using a picture of the President as the center of the sales talk, which his salesmen are directed to make.

Dr. Lee De Forest, inventor of what he terms the phonofilm, because it produces the voice as well as the picture of the person photographed, was personally in charge of the picture taking and recording a speech delivered by the President to accompany the film. The President was told that Elliott's new proposition is known as the Phonofilm Sales corporation and was formed to market $500,000 worth of stock in the De Forest Phonofilm corporation. In training his salesmen, it is reported that Elliott told them to rely on the film showing President Coolidge as the bait to get their prospects interested.

SAFETY FIRST, FRANCE TELLS ARMS PARLEY

Makes Guns Until World Guarantees Security.

BY HENRY WALES.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
(Copyright, 1925, by The Chicago Tribune.)
GENEVA, May 6.—(Stuntly, brutally, and brazenly France today told the world that she cannot reduce her armaments, restrict the production of arms, or check the shipment of munitions to any allies until her security problem is solved.)

In a ringing speech before representatives of forty-four nations, including Germany and the United States, attending the conference on control of arms traffic, which is being held under the auspices of the league of nations, Paul Boncour, the swarthy leader of the Socialist party, with 150 votes in the chamber of deputies, and one of the mainstays of the Herriot, Poincaré, and Caillaux combination, frankly stated the assembly that the conference was doomed to failure unless France obtains some guarantee pact insuring her frontiers from invasion and incidentally protecting her allies, the little entente, on the other borders of Germany.

France to Continue to Arm.
Following the lead of the chief of the American delegation, Congressman Theodore E. Burton, who yesterday drew the reduction of national armaments into the discussion of arms control, M. Boncour made a speech which embodied France's slogan since the armistice—guaranteed security against a repetition of Teuton aggression.

The Socialist orator threatened his colleagues with another world war if they insisted on neglecting the security problem and sought to build a false foundation by reducing armaments. He admitted France would continue to arm in the teeth to defend herself against attack unless assured that the rest of the world would rush to her protection in case she was invaded.

The German delegates squirmed in their seats under the pounding emphasis of M. Boncour's statements and the little entente delegates applauded feverishly as he fought for France's right to protect herself and her allies.

The American delegates listened apparently sympathetically to the French assertions, but the faces of the British were inscrutably blank.

Insists to Supply Allies.
Thus France's position was immediately revealed without a shred of camouflage or mask. She is determined as an arms producing nation not only to continue her activities unimpeded for herself, but to provide equipment for Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, and Jugoslavia, maintaining the iron ring of bayonets surrounding Germany until the other powers rally to her demands and accord the guarantee pact which is the price of her disarmament.

M. Boncour made a strong appeal for a revival of the Geneva protocol. He urged warning that France intends to rearm until all failed documents at the September meeting of the league assembly, but offered to discuss any adequate substitute convention which may be offered in the meantime.

Wants Factories Controlled.
M. Boncour attacked by inference the diametrically opposed principles enunciated by the United States delegates to the opium and arms conferences. In discussing opium, Congressman Stephen G. Porter insisted that control of the traffic was impossible unless private individual production was regulated. Here at the arms conference Mr. Burton, facing difficulty in obtaining laws by forty-eight states preventing or controlling the private manufacture of munitions, insists that production is not important, only foreign shipments being so.

The French speaker warned: "If the convention for the control of the traffic of arms is not confirmed without delay by a convention regulating private production, it will be worthless and unjust to the many workers here. We should commence regulating private manufacture before dealing with the traffic, because production is the originating point and traffic is merely the result.

The American delegation afterward pointed out that this would be a simple matter for France for all she would have to do would be to nationalize her arms industry, lifting it from private hands, and get the Czechoslovak government to do the same with the Skoda works, but that this would be an impractical achievement in the United States.

Seeks International Entente.
M. Boncour then uttered a plea for security.

"We seek to substitute an international entente for international rivalries, with an international force at the service of nations, so that the powers will realize that they are not dependent on individual armaments. Only on the day when nations attacked can count on aid from all other states when states meditating aggression realize that they will find themselves opposed by all organized force will it be possible to plan for the general reduction of armaments."

The United States had its innings this morning when, after it was ignored in the election for vice president, Mr. Burton obtained 28 of 59 votes present—America did not vote for herself—in the election of the nine members of the executive committee of the conference. The other eight were M. Boncour of France, Sig. Chimenti of Italy, Baron von Eckhardt of Germany, Baron Matsuda of Japan, Earl of Onslow of Great Britain, Señor Páez of Uruguay, Señor Souza Silva of Brazil, and Señor de la Haza of Spain.

BORAH'S TALK ON USE OF FORCE STIRS UP LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, May 6.—(A. P.)—A statement printed by Geneva newspapers, quoting Senator Borah of Idaho as having declared that only force remained to be employed if France fails to take steps to pay her war debts, was one of the chief topics of conversation today among the delegates to the conference for the control of traffic in arms. The statement attributed to Senator Borah caused so much comment that it is understood an effort will be made to determine officially whether the Idaho senator was correctly quoted here.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—(A. P.)—The statement by Senator Borah which caused a commotion in Geneva, apparently was a translation of some general observations made by the senator in the course of a copyrighted article in the Washington Sunday Star.

After discussing the French debt and commenting generally on "present conditions and tendencies," the senator said: "If the most solemn and binding obligations are to be disregarded, and especially upon matters of mere material interests, there is no alternative in international affairs—bribe or force. There will either be a reign of law or a reign of violence. Of course, these reflections are not new, for France alone, I am speaking generally—disregard of treaties is just as prevalent as disregard of law."

COLD AND SNOW ASSAIL MIDWEST; CROPS DAMAGED

Killing frosts, accompanied by temperatures below freezing in some states, wreaked heavy damage on early fruit and garden crops in parts of the northern middle-west early yesterday. The loss was believed most severe in Iowa, where strawberries and unprotected truck stuff were hard hit, according to advices here. Illinois fruit seems to have escaped the general damage. It was announced by the weather bureau at Springfield, a trace of snow fell in northern Illinois, at Milwaukee, and in widely separated parts of Michigan. While the frost wave seemed to have centered in Iowa, its effects were felt in many neighboring states, particularly eastern Nebraska, northeast Kansas, northern Missouri, South Dakota, southwest Minnesota, and even as far south as Columbia, Mo., and in some sections of Indiana.

Fears for the life of early tender vegetation were reported in most of the states visited by the frost, but in points south of Iowa little harm was done to fruit.

BOY DROWNS AS SISTER VAINLY TRIES RESCUE

Little Girl Is Saved by Friends' Heroism.

Ten-year-old Ruth Zemke made a desperate effort yesterday afternoon to save her brother and a girl chum from drowning in the lake at the foot of 34th street. She succeeded in dragging the girl to shore, but her 6-year-old brother sank beneath the surface before she could swim to where he was struggling in the water.

Station avenue police were dragging the lake last night for the body of the boy, Ray Zemke, while officers were sent to the Zemke home at 3323 Lowe avenue to notify his parents.

Girl Saved, Uninjured.
Bertha Batmas, 8 years old, 3343 Lowe avenue, who was saved by Ruth's heroism, was uninjured as a result of her narrow escape from drowning.

The two girls and the little boy were playing on the shore. The boy began to fling stones in the water, standing on the piling. He lost his balance and fell into the water which was deep at that point.

Bertha screamed and leaning over, attempted to extend a helping hand to the boy in the water. She, too, toppled in. Ruth, the oldest of the trio, was the only one who knew how to swim. She leaped in, seized Bertha by the hair and helped her to climb out.

Unable to Save Brother.
Then, she turned to help her brother. He had sunk beneath the surface and though she dived twice in frantic efforts to find his body the girl was forced to give up the search. Exhausted, she was barely able to climb upon the piling.

SWEARS WIDOW IN MURDER TRIAL BOUGHT ARSENIC

Mrs. Bernice Zalman, on trial for murdering her husband with arsenic, purchased a pound of the poison from Charles Rubin, owner of a drug store at 480 South Ashland avenue, he testified yesterday before a jury in Judge William V. Brothers' court.

The druggist declared Mrs. Zalman said she wanted the poison to kill rats in her home. In accordance with the law, Rubin testified, he took her name and address at the time.

Dr. Irving A. Forgas, coroner's physician, told the jury that his post mortem examination of Zalman's body showed inflammation which might have been caused by arsenic.

Earlier witnesses, including an 11-year-old girl, testified that Mrs. Zalman had a love affair with Leo Kalinowsky, a bakery wagon driver.

COUNCIL DELAYS PUTTING O. K. ON SCHOOL NAMES

5 Nominees Referred to Special Committee.

City council confirmation of Mayor Dever's recent nominations to fill vacancies on the school board was again delayed yesterday when, at the mayor's own suggestion, the five names were referred to the schools, fire and civil service committee for consideration.

Ardent opponents of the Mayor's administration of school affairs predicted warm greetings for the nominees before the schools committee headed by Ald. Leo Brimley (45th).

The mayor, however, laughed at these claims and threats, asserting that he had suggested committee consideration of the appointments, confident of the result and certain that the "longer the aldermen talk to these men, the better they will like them."

"There is nothing unusual in referring the school appointments to a committee," said the mayor. "It was done for the purpose of giving members of the city council, school teachers and citizens an opportunity to discuss the appointments before final

HANDS OF DEATH

The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by auto, gun, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1. Yesterday was the one hundred and twenty-sixth day of 1925.

council action. As a matter of fact, confirmation could easily have been secured this afternoon if desired."

During the meeting Margaret Haley, business agent of the Teachers' Federation, launched a new campaign to persuade the teachers' council to their former place in the school program.

Passing Resolutions. A resolution, introduced by Ald. J. J. Coughlin (1st) and approved by the council, suggested that the board of education "call meetings of the teachers' council, to recognize them, and to adopt in peaceful and harmonious manner, and for an honorable agreement to sit in the councils when called or assembled."

Another resolution, introduced by Ald. Thomas J. Bowler (41st), which was also approved, calls upon the board of education to consider the location of a normal school somewhere on the northwest or west side of the city.

FORBIDS COMEDIAN TO LEAVE SEAT. It didn't seem funny to Morris Samuels, 1886 West Taylor street, when Judge William L. Morgan ordered him to do all his funny work in Illinois. He wept. Samuels is a comedian and was arrested in California on his wife's charge of non-support.

TWO KILLED IN AUTO SMASHUPS; TOLL NOW IS 232

Driver Fails in Effort to Avoid Crash.

Two men fell victims yesterday to death by motor vehicles. The year's toll in Cook county was swelled to a total of 232 by these deaths.

In a heroic but vain effort to spare the life of a pedestrian who crossed in the path of his truck, Carl Swift, 1223 Hudson avenue, averted his vehicle so sharply that it overturned, injuring him severely.

Track Upset; 1 Killed.

The pedestrian, Frank Staser, 65, 2015 Cleveland avenue, was knocked down by the truck and was mortally wounded. He died a short time later at the Augustana hospital, where Swift was also taken. The accident occurred at Lincoln and Garfield avenues.

James Flynn, 75, 380 East 29th street, died at the Michael Reese hospital a short time after he was struck at South Park boulevard and 29th street by a taxicab driven by Robert Haney, 4401 University avenue. The driver was released on bond.

Order Manslaughter Charge. A coroner's jury, investigating the death on April 18 of Eugene Hill, 4137 Greenview avenue, ordered that Max Telger, 1509 South Kedzie avenue, whose taxicab killed Hill, be held to the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter.

AGGRESSIVE COPS WIN PROMOTION TO DESK WORK

One Reason for Crime
Growth, Experts Say.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Advantage of their catching talent by the rule keeping police lieutenants in the stations, instead of sending them out over their districts, is held by some experts to be one important factor in the slump in police morale.

A dozen and more instances of specialists on some type of crime transformed into chair warmers and floor walkers were gathered in a symposium of politicians, police reporters and other insiders yesterday at the city hall.

The list, of course, is by no means exhaustive, but the symposium deemed it illustrative of how the present rule has operated:

Lieut. William O'Connor won the Harrison medal for the capture of Tuddy Webb. As a lieutenant of detectives he worked on many big cases, and made a great record. He caught Jimmy Smith, who was sentenced to be hanged, but Gov. Small changed it to life, and killed Smith's pal, Kuntz, after they had shot a policeman. Now he is inside the station at 60th street answering the telephone and keeping books.

Here Are Other Examples.

Lieut. John Joe Farrell, who holds one of the best records among the force, was at the detective bureau for years. He solved the Clearing bank robbery and the case of Russell Scott, who is sentenced to be hanged. Farrell is rated as one of the best diggers in the department. He now is wearing a desk stool inside central detail station.

Lieut. Thomas H. McFarland at the detective bureau became a specialist on pickpockets and con men. He worked in the bureau of identification for more than ten years. He was active in cleaning up one of the first important bank robberies, that of the Washington Park bank. He is one of the authorities on thieves. Now he is counter jumping at the Stanton avenue station.

More of Same Sort.

Lieut. Charles Welling at the bureau was one of the best squad leaders. He specialized on stickup men and gangsters and for two years he had a squad in "the Valley." Now he is wearing out his elbows doing desk work at Warren avenue, the work desk sergeants used to do.

Lieut. Thomas McNurney was on Chicago's first rifle squad and was one of the best men in the detective bureau. Now he is answering the telephone at Town Hall station.

Lieut. Thomas O'Hare worked in the loop for years. He and his pal, Frank Pink, were known as the "night watchmen," working from midnight to morning. They made great reputations. Now O'Hare is cloistered at the Fillmore station.

Lieut. Michael Grady at the detective bureau was instrumental in cleaning up some of the leading cases, such as that of the Eddie Morris murder and the Logan Square bank robbery. He was called one of the acts of the bureau. Now he is working at the desk inside the Graham station.

Other Arrested Careers.

Lieut. Paul Riccio was rated as a great Italian detective at the bureau, specializing on Black Hand cases. Now he answers the telephone at the Deering station.

Lieut. John H. Tobin for years was considered one of the ablest men in the detective bureau. Detecting confidence game workers was his specialty. Now he is anchored behind the desk at Cragin.

Lieut. Alex Jensen won an enviable record as an active chaser of criminals. Now nailed to a desk stool at Summerdale.

Lieut. George DeMar was at the detective bureau for eight years or so, and was on the well-known team of Noonan and DeMar, chief chasers. Now he is answering phone calls at Chicago avenue.

Lieut. Edward Kelly at the detective bureau for six years or so. Knows the pickpocket mobs. Other cities used to borrow him from Chicago on special occasions like the Kentucky Derby. Now he is doing desk work at Chicago avenue.

Lieut. Edward Murphy knows hundreds of south side thieves and did great work at the detective bureau. Now he keeps the books at Sheffield avenue.

Such is only a list jotted down at random during the talking.

"Where would you ever find a business concern," commented a west side politician in the know, "turning its best go-getters into floor walkers and office boys? A detective makes a great record; promote him by giving him an inside job."

"Mike Hughes, one of America's greatest thief catchers, is exiled to the salt mines in Irving Park."

DOWNSTATERS SUBMIT BILL TO LIMIT CHICAGO

BY FRANK BUTZOW.

Springfield, Ill., May 6. — (Special.)—Illinois' vital issue between Chicago and the downstate on legislative apportionment was reopened in the assembly today. The next battle will be the downstaters on the offensive attempting to limit Cook county's power in the legislature by a constitutional amendment.

Representative Bancroft (Rep., Cumberland), presented a new resolution to create a special joint committee to draft a proposed amendment. If the committee is created Bancroft intends to present his plan for a hard and fast restriction on Cook county.

Send to Committee.

The Bancroft resolution was sent to the senatorial apportionment committee.

At the same time Bancroft was presenting his resolution to the house, the senate executive committee killed a similar resolution offered by Senator Hicks (Rep., Winnebago). The senate committee took the position that the question of reapportionment was not the subject for a resolution, but for an actual redistricting bill.

Bills of this kind are pending. One is a skeleton bill, the work of John B. Ferguson, the other is a complete redistricting plan presented by the Chicago Home Rule league.

No Hope of Approval.

Gov. Small today submitted the proposed child labor amendment to the legislature, where it will lie dormant.

The governor is understood to disapprove of the amendment and presented it only when advised that it was his duty to do so after receiving the proposition from Washington.

Labor leaders, who see no possibility for obtaining Illinois' approval of the amendment from this legislature, are said to be in accord with the agreement to pigeonhole it until the next session at least.

At the same time Bancroft was presenting his resolution to the house, the senate executive committee killed a similar resolution offered by Senator Hicks (Rep., Winnebago). The senate committee took the position that the question of reapportionment was not the subject for a resolution, but for an actual redistricting bill.

Bills of this kind are pending. One is a skeleton bill, the work of John B. Ferguson, the other is a complete redistricting plan presented by the Chicago Home Rule league.

No Hope of Approval.

Gov. Small today submitted the proposed child labor amendment to the legislature, where it will lie dormant.

The governor is understood to disapprove of the amendment and presented it only when advised that it was his duty to do so after receiving the proposition from Washington.

Labor leaders, who see no possibility for obtaining Illinois' approval of the amendment from this legislature, are said to be in accord with the agreement to pigeonhole it until the next session at least.

Strike Halts Work on New Produce Market

Construction work on the new produce market at 14th and Racine avenue was halted again yesterday when Patrick Sullivan, president of the Building Trades council, ordered a strike of union building trades mechanics and laborers because of non-union working conditions.

Yesterday's strike was one of several which has halted the work on the construction on the new market, which will house the commission firms now occupying South Water street.

WHITE LIGHTS TO BRIGHTEN STATE STREET

Plans for the installation of a white way lighting system on State street between Lake and Van Buren streets are being prepared by the State Street Business Men's association and John T. Miller, commissioner of gas and electricity, the commissioner announced yesterday.

The proposed scheme involves the removal of street car trolley poles from the curb and the support of trolley wires by guys fixed to the buildings.

Details of the plan, worked out jointly by Graham, Anderson, Probst & White, architects and engineers for the State Street Business Men's association, contemplate high standards, topped with clusters of three 2,500 candlepower lamps. In place of about ninety trolley poles now lining State street, probably 140 of the new standard would be installed.

A somewhat similar scheme of illumination for Van Buren street from Michigan avenue to the river was recently approved by the Van Buren Street Improvement association.

Henrici's

—a place to which people come for good food, well served, at prices not extravagant.

The designation "restaurant" is so often misapplied and misused that for reasons of clarity in definition it is, as a rule, omitted from the Henrici signature.

As a matter of fact, Henrici's is in several very important respects quite different from the usual sort of establishment employing the term "restaurant."

The features most stressed in claims for patronage by many restaurants are absent from Henrici's or a mere matter of accepted minor routine there.

In brief, Henrici's provides food of most unusual excellence, served in common sense pleasing ways in an environment eminently suited to the strict standards of quality prevailing throughout.

So has Henrici's won a daily patronage that is unceasing from the early breakfast hours to 12 o'clock midnight—every day in the week, including Sundays. Why not Henrici's today?

Every Dot Indicates Ten Subscribers to the Newspaper Iowa Depends Upon

Money!

One million six hundred thousand dollars ($1,600,000) a year.

That's what the people of Iowa pay annually for subscriptions to The Des Moines Register and Tribune-News.

We give them their money's worth, too. Complete service of the Associated Press, United Press, United News, Consolidated Press, International News—Finest features of all kinds—Four hundred Iowa correspondents—Ding's cartoons (Jay Darling's home paper, you know).

If Iowans spend $1,600,000 just on our papers, what do you suppose they could be persuaded to spend on shoes and hair nets and tooth paste and things?

*160,000 Daily, 140,000 Sunday

That's quite a circulation for a newspaper published in a city of only 150,000 people.

—One paper to every four people in Des Moines every evening and Sunday. One copy morning to every eight people. You can count on your fingers the newspapers that can equal this city coverage.

—A clean hundred thousand more in Iowa outside of Des Moines. The dots on the map tell the story.

Daily or Sunday The Des Moines Register and Tribune-News has more subscribers in Iowa outside Des Moines, —than any Minneapolis or St. Paul paper has in Minnesota outside the twin cities.

—than any St. Louis paper has in either Missouri or Illinois outside St. Louis.

—than any Kansas City paper has in either Missouri or Kansas outside Kansas City.

In eighty-seven out of Iowa's ninety-nine counties The Des Moines Sunday Register has more circulation than the leading Chicago Sunday paper.

*Largest circulation in the world of any newspaper published in a city the size of Des Moines.

Modesty!

Our merchandising service department wants to be modest but manufacturers and advertising agencies keep saying such nice things about the way we co-operate with their campaigns that it's pretty hard.

Probably it's because our men have been at it for a good many years and are so familiar with the in's and out's of Des Moines and Iowa that they get such exceptional results.

COUNCIL SEEKS TO HASTEN RAIL TERMINAL PACT

Shifts Control Over New 300 Million Project.

Development of the $300,000,000 south side consolidated railroad terminal, straightening of the Chicago river from Harrison to 16th streets, and the opening of four new streets from the loop to the south side will be supervised by the council committee on railway terminals yesterday.

Authority for such supervision was voted by the city council yesterday.

During the two-hour debate, preceding action, the local industries, streets and alleys committee's long record of delay on the Santa Fe railroad ordinance was cited. The council action took from the hands of a subcommittee, Ald. Coughlin (1st), Henry L. Fick (20th), and John Powers (25th), jurisdiction over the big projects.

Ald. E. J. Kalind (24th), chairman of the terminals committee, won, 54 to 3, his motion to continue the work of his committee toward realization of the south side development.

Ald. Henry L. Fick (20th), T. F. Moran (19th), and Ald. John Powers (25th) were the only objectors.

"I want to call the council's attention to the fact that only two years remain before the river straightening permit issued by the federal government expires," warned Ald. Berthold Cronson (14th). "It took more than two years to get that permit, and if it is allowed to lapse now no one can say when we will ever get another."

ROME, May 6.—(A. P.)—George E. C. Smythe, Canadian consul, residing from London to Rome, arrived here this afternoon and was greeted by large and enthusiastic crowds.

FINDS OIL CLIENT OF SEN. WHEELER GUILTY OF FRAUD

Great Falls, Mont., May 6.—(A. P.)—Gordon Campbell, discoverer of the Kevin-Sunburst oil field, and the man who employed Senator R. N. Wheeler at $10,000 a year as his attorney following Wheeler's election to the senate, today was found guilty by a federal court jury of fraudulent oil promotion and using the mails to defraud.

The oil promoter was sentenced at once by Judge Bourquin to two years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth and was fined $1,000.

Senator Wheeler recently was found not guilty of a charge of unlawful use of his influence as a senator before the department of the interior in Campbell's behalf.

U. S. Is Press Second Charge.

Washington, D. C., May 6.—Conviction of Gordon Campbell in Montana on charges of using the mails to defraud will not alter plans of the department of justice to press conspiracy indictments against him here.

OFFICIALS AGAIN AT SEA OVER DUNES MURDER

Refusal yesterday of relatives to accept the charred and mangled remains of the dunes murder victim as being Mrs. Josephine Desidero, 21 years old, of Gary, Ind., left officials completely at sea as to an identification of the victim or as to a solution of her murder.

Insistently Bernardo Genaro, father of Mrs. Desidero, and his son, Carlo, shook their heads when led by Coroner Dobbins of Porter county to the rear of the Flynn morgue at Chesterton.

But, puzzled over the failure of Mrs. Desidero to report herself alive, despite the flood of newspaper publicity thrown on the case, Sheriff William Forney of Valparaiso announced an intention of holding in custody for the present the girl's chum, Mrs. Florence Kish Boto, 17 years old.

Relatives of Mrs. Mary Berg of Michigan City failed to appear at yesterday's inquest hearing. The mother and brother of Mrs. Berg, who has been missing in mystery since January, upon viewing the body on Sunday, declared it strongly resembled her.

In this connection Dr. Cannon gave the results of some experiments showing that there is some relation between the thyroid and temperature regulation. He showed there also was some relation between temperature regulation and the adrenals, but stated that with the adrenals the results were much faster, while with the thyroids they appeared to be of a more permanent nature.

Dr. Charles L. Dana, nerve specialist of New York, told the members of the American Neurological association that the manufacture of ethyl gasoline should be abandoned because of the large number of tetraethyl lead poisoning cases among the workers in this industry. He urged the finding of a substitute for this form of gasoline which would have the same effect in the running of gasoline engines.

AVERAGE LIFE LONGER

BY PHILIP KENNEL.

One principle of healing seems about as difficult to achieve as one religion. Fortunately, about 70 per cent of the sick would get well anyway.

"The greatest power under the sun is the unseen power," Dr. George E. Dietert of Aurora said yesterday at the Illinois Homeopathic Medical association session at the Auditorium hotel.

"O, that we knew more of this power of life and death that we hold," was the prayer of this old physician.

"Amen," said his brothers.

These physicians are very honest among themselves. One cannot repeat all the mistakes they admit. Yet the fact remains that the science goes ahead.

"In 1887 in Chicago the average life was 30 years," Dr. A. H. Gordon said. "Today it is 42 years."

A little advice from a layman was offered to the association by Arthur B. Green of Middletown, O., author and engineer.

Much of the evil, confusion, and divisions in medicine today is the result of unthinking demand, the commercial law of supply and demand working in response to buyers' fancies," he said. "I hope for a growing habit on the part of laymen of learning something about the fundamental principles in medicine, to the end that they may choose their doctors intelligently and help worthy, sincere doctors to rid the profession of its drift-wood."

Medicine and Engineering.

"Now, if an engineer, trained as he is in the application of certain physical laws for the use and convenience of man, were permitted to light upon this planet from some far off place, he would be amazed to find medicine divided into schools. There is no such thing in engineering. There are no two ways about the law of gravity."

Dr. Gilbert FitzPatrick, president elect of the American Institute of Homoeopathy, which, in New York, June 11-15, will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the introduction of homoeopathy in America, says the duty of the modern doctor is to educate his clients in proper habits of living, so they may keep well.

Fat Man May Be Starving.

One may find side lights on many things at the convention.

The fat man, for instance, is a diseased man. He either overeats and is lazy or he has a distinct trouble known as hyperthyroidism, which may lead to general glandular weakness. This recent studies in glands have shown this. It is due, according to Dr. Gordon, to insufficiency of iodine and injury to the thyroid secretions. A man may starve to death and still be fat.

Dr. Annie Spencer of Batavia, past president of the association, thinks that the worst habit of the modern girl is cigar smoking. This, she claims, is a distinct injury to the balance that the girls will want in later life. She is in favor of no corsets and of dancing in moderation.

PLANE FALLS; PILOT LEAVES TO SAFETY.

Cleveland, O., May 6.—(A. P.)—Henry Taylor, army flyer, stationed in Columbus, was injured severely today when he jumped from his airplane when the control stick broke, as he was flying 1,500 feet above Hotsium, O., six miles north of Akron. Taylor was brought to a Cleveland hospital, where physicians say he suffered no fractures.

WAR'S BENEFITS MANY, ASSERTS MISS EVA BOOTH

Only good things came out of the world war, Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army said yesterday in an interview during a short visit in Chicago.

Prohibition she listed as one of the benefits. Added membership in the Salvation Army was another. Increased interest in religious and welfare work she listed as others.

Sensational newspaper stories, she said, was one of the few harmful things the war had left behind. The present taste for murder stories in the press she attributes to the war.

The new addition to the south side settlement house of the Salvation Army was opened formally yesterday afternoon at 3055 Normal avenue. The new building houses a free dental and medical clinic, a day nursery and a gymnasium.

Profits in 14 Months—Sure When I. C. Electrification is Completed

How Real Estate Investors can capitalize on the growing demand for high grade residential sites in the new South Suburban District

The surest way to profit for real estate investors is to acquire property for which there is active demand, to own real estate that is wanted for residential purposes. And if the investor has opportunity to purchase in advance of sure development, his profit then will be certain—definite.

No greater opportunity in Chicago has ever been presented than the electrification of the Illinois Central Suburban Service which will provide rapid transportation to a new south suburban district—the only suburban section free from undesirable development and quickly accessible from downtown and from all parts of the south side.

And now in this new south suburban district a community of spacious residential sites on wooded land is being developed with careful planning and landscaping.

This community is Olympia Park, one block east of the Illinois Central Station at the Lincoln Highway, and overlooking the beautiful Olympia Fields Country Club.

All sites in Olympia Park are large, the average frontage being over one hundred feet. The prices range from thirty-eight to fifty-six dollars per foot, including all improvements.

The electrification of the Illinois Central, which is expected to be complete July 1, 1926, will bring greatly increased values to every site in Olympia Park, and other factors of equal importance—the growth of the Calumet District which is increasing the demand for residential sites and the total absence of suitable locations south of Chicago except in this district will bring profit to every purchaser at Olympia Park.

Those who may intend to build now or later can secure now a residential site of unusual beauty at a price much below the value that electrification will bring. Those who have considered the investment possibility of property in and about Chicago will recognize at once the strategic location and profit possibility of Olympia Park.

These sites are selling rapidly, and if you would have your selection of these remaining, visit Olympia Park Sunday—drive south on Western Avenue to the Lincoln Highway and west to Kedzie Avenue; or take an Illinois Central Matteson Train to Olympia Fields Station, where our automobiles will be on hand to take you to the property.

The Decisions of the Judges

The three judges who passed on the lists of words in the FOREMAN BANKS Word Contest had an enormous task before them. Thousands of lists were submitted. Many from out of town people. The winner had a total of 15,342 words on his list. He is a school teacher and took every advantage offered by the rules. His list was a colossal and painstaking effort, beautifully typewritten, with clear, scholarly definitions of words of some spelling and different meanings. All the winners of the first sixteen prizes had very high scores.

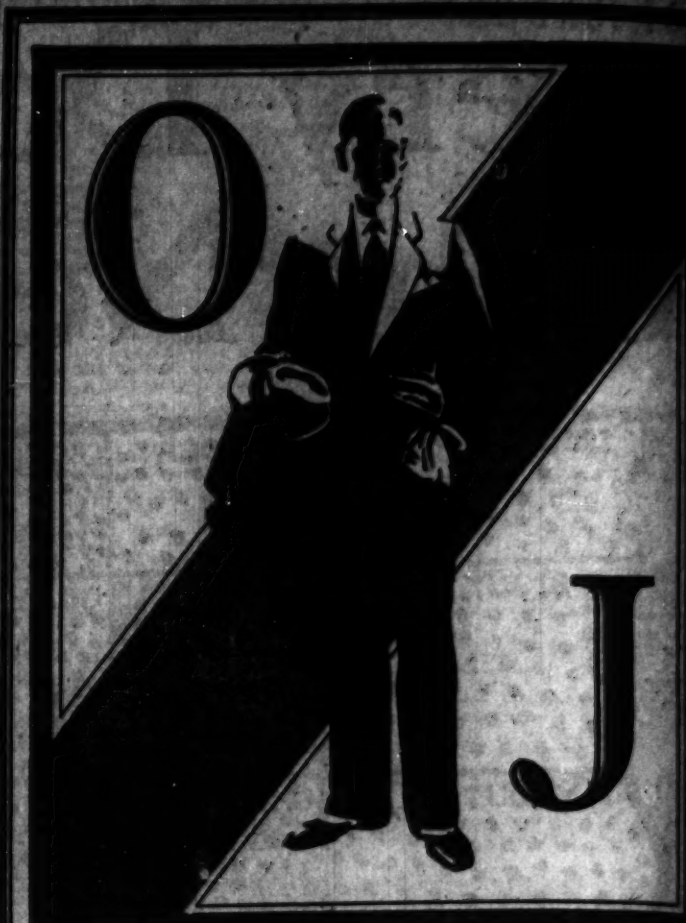

Many of the lists of words were most artistically prepared, typed, bound and even illustrated. Some had fancy covers elaborately decorated by hand.

A large number of contestants wrote letters in submitting their lists, thanking The Foreman Trust and Savings Bank for offering such a splendid educational contest, saying they had learned in this way hundreds of words they never knew of, and vastly increasing their knowledge of language. Many declared the contest a "splendid game," full of excitement and interest.

To the judges, Dr. Franklin B. Snyder, Professor of English at Northwestern University; Prof. Ronald S. Crane, Associate Professor of English at Chicago University; and Rev. Claude J. Fernal, S. J., Department of English, Loyola University, The Foreman Trust and Savings Bank extends its most sincere thanks for the able and thoroughly painstaking manner in which they judged this contest. They had a gigantic task and they accomplished it with a fine devotion to justice and fairness. The physical task alone of scrutinizing the thousands of words in the long lists submitted was a herculean undertaking. With endless patience they earnestly studied the lists and the qualifications of the words under the rules of the contest. This task and the conscientious care these gentlemen took of the contest for their clients and devoted efforts in trying to get their decisions.

We thank all those who contributed for their interest. It is our hope that this contest has created new readers and taught many thousands of people a better and wider use of the rich vocabulary of our beautiful language.

FIRST JURY IN GUN AWAIT

At another time, the case of Mike O'Connell, charged with robbery with a gun, would have been heard without a jury. But because of other cases, the case was postponed until today.

Because the case was postponed, the court office at 3352 N. Dearborn, where the case was heard yesterday, is now a new gun court.

The outcome, which is expected today, will attract more attention, and prosecutors have a hearing on the case.

FIRST JURY CASE IN GUN COURT: AWAIT RESULT

At another time, in another court, the case of Mike Conditine, charged with robbery with a gun, would have been of other cases like it, onto the scratched records of the Criminal Court.

Because the case of Mike Conditine, arrested at holding up two men in a room at 1353 South Ashland avenue, became yesterday the first jury trial in Chief Justice Jacob H. Hopland's new gun court, it was eyed with interest.

Its outcome, which will probably be known today, will be regarded with much more attention, because, as judges and prosecutors have pointed out, it will have a bearing on one of the questions now under discussion in this present turmoil over a solution to the crime problem.

Much Depends on Verdict.
If Mike Conditine is found guilty, say those who are passing over the situation, it will tend to prove that the penalty of ten years to life for robbery with a gun is not too severe and that present day juries will convict unduly.

If he is acquitted it will add weight to the argument of those who claim that gun charges must be waived in order to get pleas of guilty on lesser counts, because susceptible juries are not to be trusted.

An old man, Stanley Tuman, suffering from heart trouble, owner of the goal office, was the state's first witness before Judge Hopkins. He was followed by a younger man, voluble, talking in frenzied, broken English, Konstantyn Palcensky, 1805 West 14th street.

Robbed at Pistol's Point.
Under the questioning of Prosecutors Romano and McCarthy, they told how Conditine and a companion, who had not yet been arrested, held them up at pistol point, how Conditine struck the old man with his fist, and how finally the two took more than $100 and finished their looting by stealing two cakes of soap. Palcensky followed Conditine and finally caught him and had him arrested.

The state should finish its case this morning. It is expected that the case will go to the jury late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Then will come the telling verdict.

IDENTIFY THREE IN TRAIN HOLDUP MURDER HEARING

Three of the four defendants on trial for murder at Waukegan in connection with the slaying of Russell Dickey, express messenger, in the attempted robbery of the Viking express of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad last December, were identified by state witnesses yesterday. It is the second trial of the four, the first having resulted in a disagreement. Bernhardt Mylin, accused as the actual slayer, was pointed out as the man who leaped from the train the night of the killing. Edward Smith and Bernard Smith also were identified by witnesses.

FRENCH DEFEAT MOOR TROOPS IN FIERCE BATTLE

BY LARRY RUE.
(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PARIS, May 6.—The columns of French troops led by Gen. Colombat and Col. Freydenberg today established contact with the main body of the Rifian army invading French Morocco from the Spanish zone near Bibane, directly north of Fez, and a sanguinary battle was fought.

Gen. Colombat slowly drove back the Moors, who, he reported, were well organized and well armed. This was one of the most important engagements that have taken place between the Rifians and the French. The former showed themselves exceedingly able tacticians, withdrawing in good order despite heavy bombardments by airplanes and mountain batteries. The French casualties were four officers and eighteen soldiers killed and fifty wounded, while the Rifians lost 500 dead.

Qual d'Orsay steadily affirms the French intention not to cross the Spanish border unless specifically permitted to do so by Spain and England, admitting that such action would be a violation of the Algeiras treaty of 1911.

Reports from Tangier that French troops have crossed the border in pursuit of Rifians are believed to have originated in claims of Abd-el-Krim that the frontier is at the Ouerghia river, whereas the treaty provides that all tributaries of the river, including those in the north, are in the French zone.

Attorney James G. Condon gave an address of welcome to Chicago for Judge Anderson, in which he also urged the lawyers to give some attention to the fact that the federal courts of appeal are clogged with trifling matters, due to the multiplicity of laws that have been passed in the last few years.

WHITE WATER

By ROBERT E. PINKERTON

Larry Fall, a handsome young woodsman, is commissioned by Howard Franklin to build a summer lodge on Franklin's lake, near the city. With the help of two friends, Larry and Sid Evans, Larry works all through the winter. In the spring Howard Franklin comes up to inspect the cabin, and finds them satisfactory. He tells Larry he is going to California on business, but Mrs. Franklin and his niece, Marcia Kerr, plan to spend the summer at the camp. Early in June the women arrive. Mrs. Franklin is interested in taking photographs of the lake and asks Larry to accompany her as guide on her photographic expeditions. They both find a great deal of enjoyment in these bloodless hunting expeditions. On a day that Mrs. Franklin is unable to leave the house, Larry accompanies Marcia on a fishing trip. On their return Mrs. Franklin is unable to control her anger at Marcia for taking Larry away. Two days later Mrs. Franklin resumes her photographic expeditions with Larry as her guide.

INSTALLMENT XVI.

REDA DISTURBS LARRY.

When Reda volunteered the information that she was 31 years old, Larry believed it, because he was not sufficiently interested to question her statement. And it was easily believed. Reda knew she was safe in subtracting five years from the truth.

"You're a lot younger than your husband," he remarked.
"Haven't you thought of that before?"
"Yes, the first time I saw you. All the people I've known—they've been about the same age."
"You think that is better?"
"Of course. It's more natural."
She dropped the subject there and he paddled in silence for a mile.
"We're going to get some nasty weather out of this before night," he commented. "Maybe we'd better go back."

"It doesn't look bad," she said.

"I'll risk it," she said indifferently. "Larry, why do you bury yourself in the woods?"
"I didn't know I was buried," he laughed.
"You are. With your looks, your personality, your mind, you could go a long way in a city."

"I've been in Minneapolis and St. Paul, and I don't like it. And I didn't notice that I got far. Twice I nearly starved and each time it was a job out of town that saved me."

"But that's not the way to tackle a city. If you had friends, influence, and the right sort of opening, nothing could stop you. And you would like it, too, the hotels, country clubs, dinners. I would like to show you a big city, Larry."

"That's nice of you, Mrs. Franklin," he said, with one of his charming smiles. "But I'm afraid I wouldn't fit well. I've always lived in the bush and I couldn't earn my board in a city. Besides, city folks would call me a hawkeye."

"They wouldn't!" she exclaimed with sudden heat. "I'd like to have my friends see you, though I'd have to fight to keep them from stealing you."
"That sounds like a fairy tale," he laughed.
"It is a place of fairies," she said earnestly. "I could make it so for you, Larry. I could make you think you had entered an enchanted land. And how I would love to do it. Boy, you don't know what it is to live! You don't know what it is to be in a city, how happy I—how happy you would be. Wouldn't you like to have me show you a city, Larry?"

There was a thrifty quality in her voice. She was no longer languid. Her eyes were very blue and he saw in them the same expression he had caught in that moment when she clung to him as he jerked her from the path of the rushing moose.

She wore a skirt, top, and the usual mannish flannel shirt had been replaced with a thin, frilly waist. Larry had told Marcia he had forgotten Reda was a woman in those long days of their mutual enthusiasm for moose pictures, when she had worn riding breeches. Now he was not only aware of her sex but of a disturbing quality in it. Not once in the three days of delightful intimacy with Marcia had he felt this.

"I'll save up a few months' wages and go see you some time," he said cautiously. "I guess I could earn enough in a year to stay a week."
She stopped as Larry held up a warning finger.
"Get your camera ready," he whispered. "I see two bulls."
"Will you come?" she insisted impatiently. "Soon! This fall!"
"Maybe I could," he temporized. "But look. That's the biggest bull I ever saw. Turn around. We'll get right up on top of him."

He had worked the canoe over to the shelter of a point and now started sitting it ahead with great, rushing leaps. Reda watched him for a moment, eyes smoldering, full red lips parted, throat throbbing, and then she turned away and picked up her camera.
It was late when they reached the bay, but it proved, in some respects, their most successful day of wild game photography. Larry had never visited the place before and he found a small creek leading to a mink pond that flowed with moose. The great beasts had not been disturbed all summer and often moved out of the way of the canoe and returned at once to their lair.

The stream led on to another lake in which they found a bear swimming. Reda snapped him in the water, again as he climbed out on shore and started at them with amazement, and a third time when he turned with a loud "woof" and lumbered into the brush.

Larry put the bow of the canoe on to a sand beach and Reda sat within the heat of a big red deer that was keeping a nervous watch for land enemies but never suspecting their approach on water. At last he turned and saw, then, as they were motionless, he stared for a long time. At last Reda, unable to contain herself longer, burst into laughter at his expression of amazement and wonder. Even then he only took two jumps and then wheeled to stare at her.

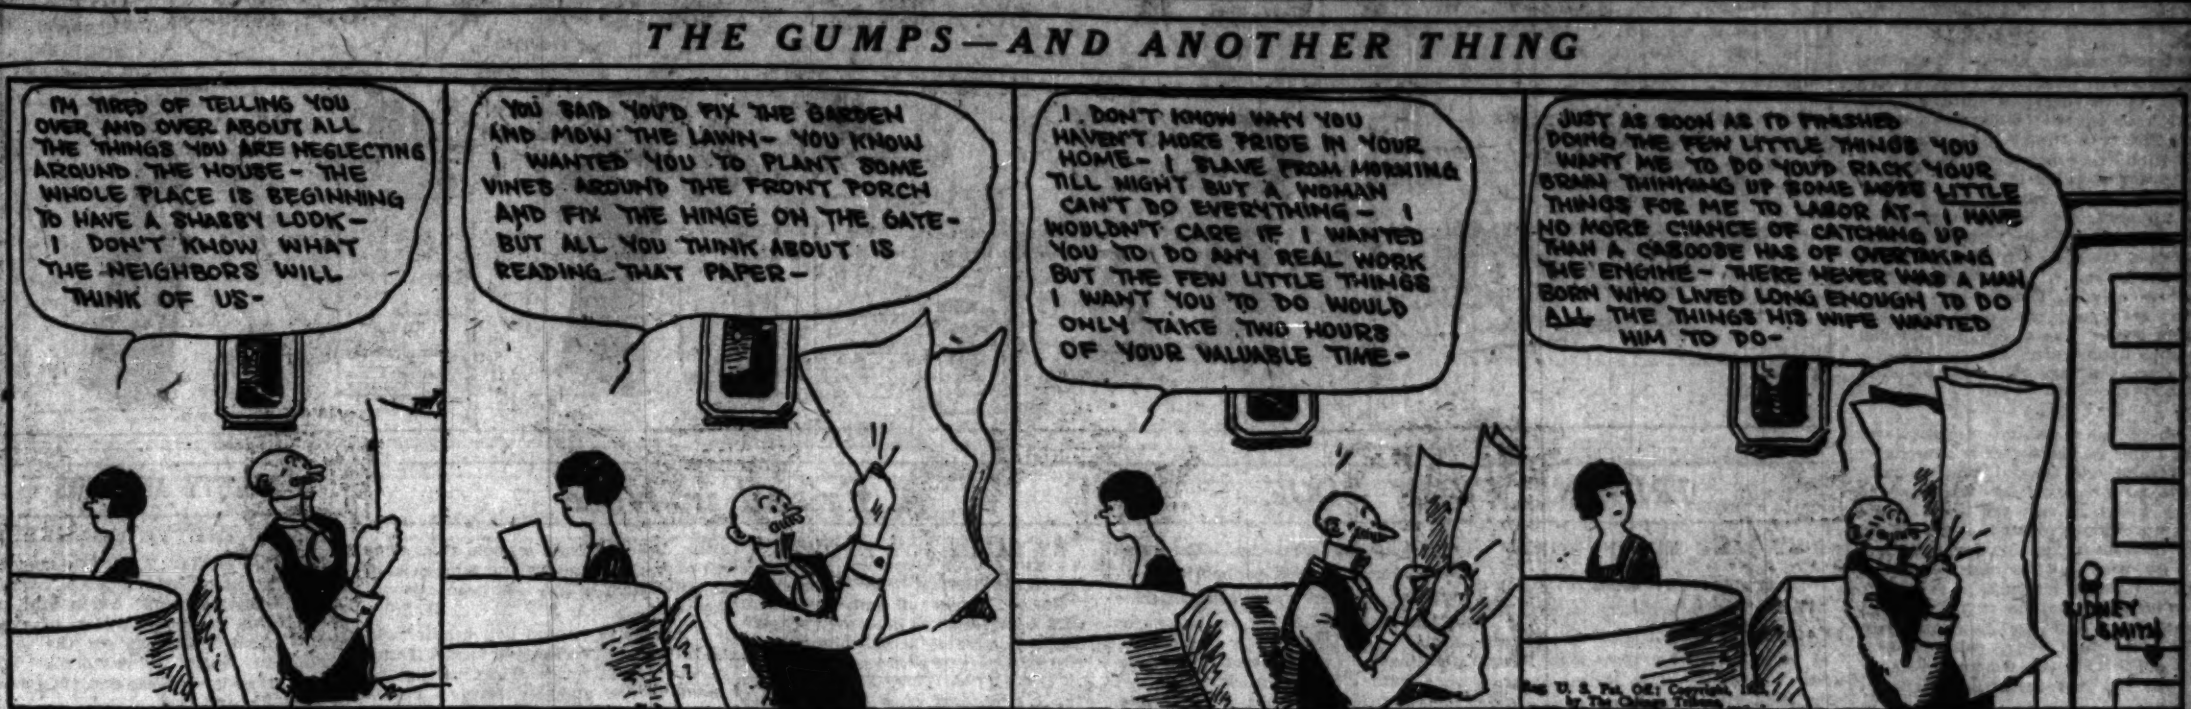

"They found a beaver dam and they waiting for a long time without success. Then they started back down the little stream they saw a cat playing in the water ahead and drifted down beside him while he stood, first on his hind legs, then on his rear, and paws and kicked the water. Reda was so sure she was drenched before he discovered their presence, and then he only stood with a friendly, bary expression as they floated past.

Their success and their adventures brought a return of the absorbing interest in wild game photography. They talked excitedly of the day's events, laughing in recollection of the buck's amazement and the cat's small boy remark, exulting in the assurance that one picture of a huge bull would not be spoiled by anything in their big collection of films.

The engrossed had they been, so far had they traveled while exploring this waterway, they were both startled when Larry discovered that it was a dead end. They were a mile from home, had eaten all their lunch, and he had no more food. They were a mile from home, had eaten all their lunch, and he had no more food.

For a time Reda sat in the bow talking of the day's events. She was no longer languid, stimulated by continued excitement, she was as he had known her during the two weeks they had hunted moose so incessantly. Again they were two people drawn together by a common interest.

After a few miles she noticed that Larry was not talking. He no longer looked at her. She could feel the canoe tremble beneath his powerful thrusts, and she could feel the canoe tremble beneath his powerful thrusts.

As Acting, This Is O. K., but It Is Merely Acting

Nazimova as a Mother Leaves You Cold.

By Max Thelen. Good morning! It's hard to tell sometimes why a picture well acted, directed, and all the rest of it leaves the observer cold. As difficult to express as to give the reason why some scenes, faultless in their appointments, impress one only with a vague sense of chill and depression. Something, you know, is lacking, and you hesitate to attempt to lay a finger on that something.

"My Son," from the play, features Nazimova as the widowed mother of an adored only son, whom she rescues from the clutches of a hard young flapper bent on seducing him.

By all rights a warm sympathy should speed spontaneously toward this mother in her suffering. Her desperate solution of the problem should incite a hot thrill of deepest admiration. Perhaps in you these feelings will be aroused. In me—none!

The lady's acting I hurry to commend, but so far as my emotions are concerned it is only acting. I wasn't sorry for her a minute, and when she smiled I was not at all moved. She is positively nobody's mother when she smiles.

Jack Pickard's acting is all right, too—but his son, like Nazimova's mother, seemed just another thingy-corny.

To Constance Bennett I hand the laurels. She is her Betty! Hard, stern, pretty, sensible, with that disturbing hint of decadence with which she so subtly invests all of her flapper roles, she is to this production like the illusive, clinging fragrance of an exquisite, colored perfume.

The scenes of "My Son" are laid in a Portuguese fishing village, on the clean, wind swept shores of New England. Nazimova is Asa Silva, a Portuguese storekeeper.

The two sisters for Ann's hand, a sheriff and a fisherman are portrayed

CLOSEUPS

"The Coming of Amos" is the name of the picture in which Rod La Rocque will make his debut as a star with Cecil de Mille's new organization.

It is said that, for the first time in his many years on stage and screen, Conway Tearle will have a crook role in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "The Mystic." He plays opposite Helen Tringle in this production.

Pola Negri flits through town today.

"The Last Laugh" will remain at the Orpheum for another week.

acceptably by Hobart Bosworth and Ian Keith respectively. Dot Farley as the flapper's mother has several clever entrances, which, having what is known as "the comedy sense," she makes the best of. If you ever saw her play the cross-eyed mother to Ben Turpin's scatter-brained son you know what I mean. An unknown dame presents "My Son's" little Portuguese sweetheart in approved ingenu style. Some of the scenery is lovely, and sets, photography, and direction are okay, BUT as regards the picture in the altogether—

I did not care for it, Dr. Fell; the reason why I've written to tell.

See you tomorrow!

Bledsoe Repeats His Success in Recital

Julius Bledsoe's second recital of the season at Orchestra hall last night was an emphatic confirmation of his first appearance a month ago. This colored baritone had a voice of astonishing beauty, and his command of a dramatic song or a sentimental ballad. As a singer he is seriously hampered by indistinct articulation of words in whatever language he attempts, but as a music maker of delightful tone quality he is one of the best of the season.

If it were not for this matter of words he would be in the front rank of singers, for to his gorgeous voice he adds what seems like first class musicianship, and he made use of a program that many another singer would do well to ponder.

Here were Giordano's "Caro mio ben" and an aria from Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro." Debussy's "L'Invitation au Voyage," a pair of Brahms' gypsy songs, and another pair of Schubert for some of the high spots, not to mention a group of English and American songs and a final group of spirituals.

This is no casual or light minded program. In the spirituals the words again became a disappointment, but the earnestness and simplicity of the music making did much for them. There were many errors. E. M.

The Inquiring Reporter Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter. Send your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune, Two today's question: Marjorie Pennington, 2123 West Madison street, was arrested $5.

The Question. Do you object to sleeveless dresses? Where Asked. Washington street at Clark.

The Answers. P. R. Moody, 4918 St. Anthony court, salesman—Well, that's up to the women to decide whether they feel they should wear sleeveless dresses or if they feel they would be out of place with them. Sleeveless dresses suggest something of the formal, therefore are not to be worn on every occasion.

Mrs. Olga Kirschner, 1313 Leland avenue, housewife—I do not object; no, not that, but they may be worn only on the proper occasions. Aside from mere utility, there is something of the decorative about a woman's dress, therefore, the nature, style, color, in short, the ensemble, should be considered, always.

W. J. Wilson, 2203 West 11th street, claim investigator—I certainly do not like to see them worn in an office—they look all right, certainly, but they are out of place. I know $5 dresses where a light sweater, a shawl, or at least some drapery, is compulsory.

Mrs. Anna Engel, 4217 North Irving street, housewife—Certainly not, if worn in the proper place, where dressiness is called for. We are not dressed up without short sleeves. Absolutely not for office work—very improper.

For this there is nothing dressier than a tailored suit.

Harold J. Robinson, 1003 Rush street, university student—Well, no, not for formal wear; otherwise there is nothing more attractive than a dress with sleeves on. If for everyday wear they added short sleeves and low necks to the short and shorter skirts—well, you finish the sentence.

Woman's Club to Seek Quarters in U. of C. Loop Block

By an almost unanimous vote the Chicago Woman's club yesterday authorized its building committee to start negotiations with the University of Chicago for obtaining a permanent home in the building which the University of Chicago contemplates erecting soon in the loop.

But where the building is to be located (other than the fact that it is to be north of Congress, south of Randolph and east of State street, how much it, or the club's share of it, is to cost, and when construction begins, was not made public.

"The plans are still exceedingly tentative," said Mrs. Annie P. Lobdell, chairman of the building committee. "There will probably be a joint meeting of the club and the University club delegates, when the details will be worked out."

The Woman's club, through its president, Mrs. Harold Locke, emphasizes the need of a permanent home for the club, and for another, would be a good comedian in behavior that touches the heart as surely as it touches the sense of fun.

As an advisory guide to playgoing by the readers of The Tribune, I've been appraising myself as something like a wash-out since they remained away from "The Show-Off," but I take a large measure of solace from the fact that they were the losers and that I was right, and am thus fortified sufficiently to suggest that they see Mr. Craven in "New Broome."

Twins Stage Yelling Contest at Baby Show and the Girls Win

It was good fun yesterday at the baby show. The management thought it was putting on a baby show. The babies knew better.

It was a contest to see who had the best lungs. No decisions were ever reached, but far out upon the lake the school of those infantile yells that afternoon made the American Exposition building at 646 Lake Shore drive a den of din could be heard.

The whole trouble was started by the twin girl babies. This is something to know. If you can't tell twin babies apart any other way, just start to take off their clothes. The boys, nine times out of ten, will smile and go on working their toes. But the girl member of the pair! She'll whoop with wounded modesty.

Today will be Dever day at the baby show. The mayor and Mrs. Dever have been invited to come and survey the most perfect specimens of tomorrow's citizens.

Friday Sheriff Peter Hoffman will visit the show, have a physical examination, and enter himself in the perfect adult competition.

Only the afternoon hours of the show are devoted to babies. Children from 5 to 6 years old are examined from 7 until 8 p. m., youths and adults from 8 to 10 p. m. Owing to the number entered, the show has been extended through Sunday.

Men, Why Do You Suppose They Like 'Em Tall and Dark?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Men of limited stature and hair an other shade than black, we warn you not to ask your wife in a warm, confidential moment her ideal type of man.

Let well enough alone. If she has compromised with her ideal to the extent of serving you faithfully for years your favorite buckwheat cakes, don't flit with trouble by prying further than the crisp brown coating of the breakfast cake.

Perhaps we shouldn't tell on her. We wouldn't, but for an overwhelming curiosity to know who is this tall, dark gent the girls almost unanimously voted for at the Women's world fair held recently in Chicago.

How we wrung the secret from the female breast was thus: We handed out slips upon which was the query: Is your ideal man tall, medium, short, blond, brunet, red head?

Out of a thousand answers we don't think we had better tell the exact percentage—but the tall brunet came in on such a landslide we began to worry about letting the rest of the male world know about it at all. Wars have been provoked for lesser causes and we wish not to start even one slight domestic war.

Nevertheless, to the victor must go the spoils. And the tall dark man given away with every palm reading for a dollar gets the women's vote as well as his less fortunate brother's money.

There were a few married women, to be sure, who believed an ideal may be reduced in stature and shade away in hair tone and serve quite well. They voted for the husband who was a step short or medium, blonde or red head, bald or gray, however.

Not all of those wearing wedding rings as they voted were willing to grant the compromise with fate.

"I don't have to put my husband down, do I?" was asked frequently. "He isn't tall and dark, but that's the way I love 'em."

Young girls didn't wait to ask the reason why. They checked him tall and dark at once.

We'll have to ask some psychologist about this one day soon. Why do they like them tall and dark? Is this a hang-over instinct from those early days when the strong one stood outside the door and shook his mighty fist at prowling invaders? When women wanted something strong and vigorous to stand between them and a cruel world?

In the meantime girls you better tell your sweetie you wouldn't have him an inch taller nor his fiery locks one bit less colorful. We promise never to give you away any further than we have done already.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Easy to Be Friends.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am deeply in love with a fellow of 15. I have been going out with him two years. About six months ago we had a quarrel and since then we don't speak. Please advise me how I can be friendly with him again."

DOWNHEARTED.

Downhearted, just go right up to the young man the next time you see him and tell him you feel it is foolish for two persons to refuse to speak to each other as they pass by. It is so much easier to be friendly with every one, even though we do not always agree on things, don't you think? And, again, life is too short to hold any grudges.

Just Forget Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl of 19, and last month I met a young fellow to whom I took a liking. I later learned that this fellow was only 15. Do you think that I should continue my friendship with him or just forget him?"

DOUBTFUL.

If you were both older, dear, a difference of two years would not seem so great, but at the tender age of 17 I am afraid the young man would look upon you as an old lady—at least I would assume so from some of the letters I receive. Better stick to those your own age.

Now is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There is no longer the old-fashioned idea of freckles as a mark of youth and beauty. Freckles are now considered a mark of ugliness and a sign of old age. Freckles are caused by an excess of melanin in the skin. Freckles can be removed by the use of Freckle Cream. Freckle Cream is a gentle, effective remedy for freckles. Freckle Cream is available at all department and drug stores.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Water for Beans.

BY JANE EDDINGTON.

When one runs across those who are so stubbornly sure that their way is the only way to prepare the thing under discussion, one's courage some what ebbs away about presenting other phases of the subject. Now the preparation of beans for baking is one of the matters concerning which there is a lot of dead sureness or opinion. Many a recipe is to be found, in rather late books, advising the addition of water frequently to beans while they are baking, yet when it is necessary to do so it has been because they have been cooking with too much fire, and the finely seasoned water which was around them has evaporated and the freshly added water can never be quite as good for the beans. And a far worse waste of quality is to parboil beans in water which leaches out some of their soluble and then to throw that water away.

In answer to a request as to how much water to use with beans, one can authoritatively use four to one, one measure of beans and four times that measure of water. That is what ordinary dry beans will absorb with correct cooking, leaving a pleasant amount of liquid around them after they are either stewed or baked. But this provides for the smallest amount of evaporation, and when only the smallest amount of evaporation can take place the wrong sort of fire for the beans is being used.

A cup of either kidney or Lima beans may be picked over, washed, and put to cook with four cups of cold water without any soaking, and cooked with a fire so small that the water will not reach the boiling point for almost an hour and they will be done in two or three hours after that. But you can hard boil kidney beans all day and not get them soft, because the heat has hardened the protein in the beans. The liquid around kidney beans when they are cooked should be rather thick and palatable, but it cannot be if fresh water is added to the beans but a short time before they are done.

them, brought from schools and towns all over the country, and will be glad to give them to any one who can call for them.

H. S.

I should say some boy or girl will be interested in these pennants! Think of their possibilities in decorating the room or the summer cottage. Canoe pillows are often attractive when covered with pennants. Would you like to get them?

Margaret to Give.

"I am willing to mail at my own expense to any one who is desirous of obtaining them, a complete set of the Popular Mechanics magazines for the year 1924."

This is a splendid offer of magazines, and we hope some one will avail himself of it at once.

One Must Choose the Bob or That Trying Low Coil

by

Edwina doesn't know whether to let "it" grow or run down to the barber shop and have it trimmed again. She's a bit tired of her shingle, and it is such a bother to keep trimmed and curled. Edwina's cry is echoed in ten thousand female throats. Whether to let it grow or not!

We do need some lovely leading lady or popular society beauty to evolve a coiffure that will set all to copying, don't we? As Edwina says, "I'd grow my hair if only there was something worth growing it for. But there seems not to be."

That low necked roll, sometimes called the door knocker, is trying beyond words to any but a beauty whose slender form and lovely features nothing could damage. Yet, looking over the French and our own smartest fashion magazines, there seems no other choice than the bobbed hair and the low coil at the back of the neck.

Until such time as a top knot coiffure is devised that will have something new and appealing to it, we feel the hairpin industry is going to keep on suffering. I wouldn't be surprised if the next chapter in hair dressing is full of curls. We've gone the limit on the close fitting coiffure. Word comes from across the water that a new coiffure is being tried out by Paris mannequins. The hair is allowed to grow until it is long enough to be curled in ringlet fashion. Then the curls are tied up like a bunch of flowers and fastened carefully right at the back of the head. The front hair is unwaved and drawn right back from the face by means of a round, brightly colored comb, which fits snugly into the bunch of curls at the back. The effect reminds you of a small curly headed girl whose mamma is treating her to an extra special scrub.

Winterbothams' New Home Is Periled by Flaming Pot of Paint

BY NANCY R.

The old Julian Rumsey house at 1100 and Cass streets took on a more menacing glow the other day than it has had in years, when, inadvertently, a pot of paint was set off—bright red paint. It was, and an even brighter red blaze.

As you've already heard, the John H. Winterbothams have leased this huge and austere mansion, and are in the throes of redecorating and rearranging it. The cause of the fire was probably that modern habit—a careless lighting of a cigarette, but the reputation of the paint pot was instantaneous and dangerous. Fortunately, the head of the Winterbothams household was at hand, and in his haste snatched up the most likely looking member for the flame. It turned out later that he had used the very best of paint, and the fire was not so serious as it seemed. The fire was not so serious as it seemed. The fire was not so serious as it seemed.

Young Wolcott Blair is having a pretty bad time of it, I'm told. Owing to his recent automobile accident, he's still in hospital, his chest and lower leg so badly inflamed that as yet he can't be operated on to set his jaw back in its proper position. His parents, the Watson Blairs, are planning to spend the summer in the White Mountains, but they aren't going east or even making definite arrangements until their son is safe and comfortable once more.

From James MacVough, enthusiastic Boy Scout instructor and worker, comes word that the St. James troop, under their scout master, C. P. Thompson, and accompanied by a troop of Girl Scouts, had a grand final April tree planting at the Edgebrook preserve (they planted 1,000 trees in all during the month of April). With the assistance of Mrs. Philip Reed, who's a director in the organization of Girl Scouts, there will probably be a St. James troop of Girl Scouts organized early in the autumn to help and compete with their brothers and playmates there.

Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick gave a small dinner last evening for the Kellogg Fairbanks' guest, Paul McCormick. By the way, Mrs. McCormick didn't come to Chicago on this trip after all, leaving the honors of the visit entirely to her husband.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' APRON.

The front and back of this apron are cut entirely in one piece, and a belt attached to the back of the apron buttons in the front.

The pattern, 2420, is cut in small, medium, and large sizes. The medium size requires two yards of 32, 36 or 40 inch material.

Order Blank for Clotilde Patterns. CLOTILDE, 3421 N. LAUREL, CHICAGO.

Indicate Size and Price and on the Clotilde patterns sent below: Pattern number. Size. Price.

Name. Street. City. State.

How to Order Clotilde Patterns. Write your name and address plainly on dotted lines, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number, and address your order to Clotilde, Chicago Daily Tribune.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Difficult for Both.

It happened in the dressing room of a club where several women had gathered. One of the members was an attractive woman and I had for a long time secretly admired her beautiful and abundant jet black hair. On this day she had just come into the dressing room, when I said, "O, do take your hair off and let me see that beautiful heavy hair of yours. And it is so black, too!" She smilingly took off her hat. Lo and behold! a partly gray head was revealed with a wad on top the size of a walnut. It seems she had forgotten her topknot. It surely was embarrassing for both of us, since she had immediately stepped to the mirror after removing her hat. F. P.
